PREFACE

The Mennonite Library and Archives produced this Index to Mennonite Immigrants on United States Passenger Lists, 1872-1904 to assist the hundreds of families who each year request information on the immigration of their ancestors. The index lists nearly 15,000 individuals who arrived on over 200 ships during approximately the last quarter of the nineteenth century. Many researchers have previously sought information on Mennonite immigrants from Clarence Hiebert's Brothers in Deed to Brothers in Need, but this book does not have an every name index and about 75 additional ships have been added in this new index. Many of the new ships arrived after 1885, the ending date for ships included in Hiebert's lists.

No listing of Mennonite passenger arrivals in the United States can be comprehensive, but this new index is relatively complete for larger groups of immigrants who arrived in the 1870s and 1880s. Smaller groups of one or two individuals or families are difficult to discover unless other documents indicate the exact ship or date of arrival. We would welcome new listings discovered by others and will add them to our computerized database of Mennonite immigrants.

In general the records of the U. S. Customs Service contain each passenger's name, age, sex, occupation, nationality and country in which each plans to reside. Only the name, age and occupation were included in the listings in this index. The Customs Service records are available on microfilm from the National Archives, and the Mennonite Library and Archives has acquired several dozen rolls of film which contain listings for larger groups of Mennonites. Paper copies of individual ship lists were ordered for smaller groups. The information was then entered into PC-FILE III, a data base manager, and sorted.

Since the Customs Service records do not list the religion of each immigrant, it is occasionally difficult to recognize the Mennonite names. In the case of larger groups, the Mennonites on the lists are easily discovered and confirmed by other documents. Moreover, when the nationality listing is the Molotschna or the destination is Goessel, Kansas, or Mountain Lake, Minnesota, one can be relatively certain to have discovered a Mennonite listing. However, when one finds an isolated Schmidt or Schroeder and even a Goering or Kaufman with the destination and nationality missing from the record, one often cannot determine if the family is Mennonite. When it seems probable that the listing was for a Mennonite, the name was included.

This book has standardized the spelling of all names for the purpose of indexing. Many families changed the spelling of names after arrival in the United States or the recorder in the customs office may have changed the spelling. The ship lists give the spelling as recorded on the actual lists, but the index uses the standardized spellings. Thus one should look for Claasen, Claassen, Claason, Clahsen, and Claussen under Classen on the index. All cross references are included in the index for easy use. (If one looks under Claasen, it refers to Classen).

This book contains two lists and three indexes. First, a chronological list of the ships carrying Mennonite immigrants, including the total # of Mennonite passengers on each ship (pp. 1-4), and second, the list of the passengers on those ships (pp. 5-122). Third, the alphabetical index to the passengers (pp. 123-216), and finally, an alphabetical (pp. 217-220) and a code number (pp. 221-224) index to the ships.

Some of the information in this book may be of general interest to Mennonite historians. One can calculate family size and age distribution for large groups of Mennonites. One could even study the use of names: Freni, Susanna, Jacob, and Johann were very popular in some groups. One interesting phenomenon was dozens of families encountered with two children under age one making the hazardous voyage (ages 11 months and 1 month listed).

For the purpose of indexing, each ship was assigned a three-digit code number, 000-213. The index of names gives one this code number for each immigrant and the age of each immigrant. (The age may help the researcher who encounters numerous Jacob Schmidts or Helen Jantzs). Then one may use the code number to refer back to the actual list to find the family grouping, age, and occupation of the immigrant. With a few exceptions, the code numbers were assigned in chronological order, but the code number index at the end of the book gives the pages for each passenger list. Thus when one finds Riesen, Rudolf 003 52 in the index of names, turn to the code number index where 003 is listed as the Frisia which arrived in the United States on 5/28/1873 and the complete listing for the Frisia is found on page 6. Rudolf Riesen is age 52.
